Peter Cundill's Reading List

I previously reviewed, There's Always Something To Do, which describes the investment approach of the late great Canadian value investor, Peter Cundill. Cundill was a global value investor, who invested across the corporate structure, and generated whopping 15+% per annum returns for 33 years!

In his book, Peter Cundill wrote "there are a few books - really not that many - which I believe are indispensable reading for every serious investor...".

Below is a list of the books:

- Extraordinary Popular Delusions and the Madness of Crowds by Mackay
- The Crowd: A Study of the Popular Mind by Le Bon
- Buffett: The Making of an American Capitalist by Lowenstein
- The Money Masters by Train

- The Intelligent Investor by Graham

- The Templeton Touch by Proctor

- The Alchemy of Finance by Soros
