Fiscal (Political) Feasibility

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Country</th>
<th>Likely Fiscal Policy</th>
<th>Notes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>US</td>
<td>Likely to increase, amount depends on election outcome</td>
<td>The US fiscal outlook will depend on the outcome of the elections. If there is a divide between the two parties in the Presidency and Congress, the fiscal spending is likely to be muted. Clinton Proposals: $275bn infrastructure plan, overhaul tax code to raise taxes on the wealthy and the inheritance tax for the largest estates, close tax loopholes, and expand social benefits Trump Proposals: $500bn on infrastructure spending, overhaul tax code to lower taxes on the wealthy, and lower the corporate tax rate, close tax loopholes, rework trade agreements, and raise barriers to immigration</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td>Already increased</td>
<td>Abe announced ¥28.1trn* fiscal package, but new spending is only ¥7.5trn (of which ¥4.6trn (0.9% of GDP) will fall in this fiscal year). The overall package is very large (5.6% of GDP), but implementation needs to be watched closely.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Kingdom</td>
<td>Likely to increase post Brexit</td>
<td>In the wake of the Brexit vote, it is expected the UK will reset their fiscal policy and move out the target date to reach a fiscal surplus (current target is 2020) and possibly introduce a discretionary fiscal stimulus package. The fiscal plan is likely to be announced in November.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Europe</td>
<td>Unlikely to see a big fiscal expansion</td>
<td>Germany is the one country that has room to expand their fiscal policy versus other EU countries which have seen austerity. The large debt loads in the EU periphery and fiscal deficits will make a large fiscal expansion unlikely in the EU as a whole.</td>

This material may include statements that constitute “forward-looking statements” under the U.S. securities laws. Forward-looking statements include, among other things, projections, estimates, and information about possible or future results related to a client’s account, or market or regulatory developments.

Important Information Regarding Risk Factors

Important Information Regarding DoubleLine’s Investment Style
DoubleLine seeks to maximize investment results consistent with our interpretation of client guidelines and investment mandate. While DoubleLine seeks to maximize returns for our clients consistent with guidelines, DoubleLine cannot guarantee that DoubleLine will outperform a client’s specified benchmark or the market or that DoubleLine’s risk management techniques will successfully mitigate losses. Additionally, the nature of portfolio diversification implies that certain holdings and sectors in a client’s portfolio may be rising in price while others are falling; or, that some issues and sectors are outperforming while others are underperforming. Such out or underperformance can be the result of many factors, such as but not limited to duration/interest rate exposure, yield curve exposure, bond sector exposure, or news or rumors specific to a single name.
DoubleLine is an active manager and will adjust the composition of client’s portfolios consistent with our investment team’s judgment concerning market conditions and any particular sector or security. The construction of DoubleLine portfolios may differ substantially from the construction of any of a variety of bond market indices. As such, a DoubleLine portfolio has the potential to underperform or outperform a bond market index. Since markets can remain inefficiently priced for long periods, DoubleLine’s performance is properly assessed over a full multi-year market cycle.

Important Information Regarding Client Responsibilities
Clients are requested to carefully review all portfolio holdings and strategies, including by comparing the custodial statement to any statements received from DoubleLine. Clients should promptly inform DoubleLine of any potential or perceived policy or guideline inconsistencies. In particular, DoubleLine understands that guideline enabling language is subject to interpretation and DoubleLine strongly encourages clients to express any contrasting interpretation as soon as practical. Clients are also requested to notify DoubleLine of any updates to Client’s organization, such as (but not limited to) adding affiliates (including broker dealer affiliates), issuing additional securities, name changes, mergers or other alterations to Client’s legal structure.
